THE VINEYARD'S VINEYARD

"The scope of the subject of wine is never ending," wrote British (and world) wine authority Hugh Johnson, "so many other subjects lie within its boundaries. Without geography and topography it is incomprehensible; without history it is colourless; without taste it is meaningless; without travel it remains unreal. It embraces botany, chemistry, agriculture, carpentry, economics – any number of sciences whose names I do not even know. It leads you up paths of knowledge and by-ways of experience you would never glimpse without it."

Almost all of these elements converge in a single project which is being undertaken by The Vineyard Hotel & Spa in Newlands, Cape Town. And guests strolling along one of the many paths or by-ways in the beautifully lush gardens of this historic 207-room hotel set on six acres in the midst of suburbia will discover a vineyard once more along the banks of the Liesbeek River. This vineyard is more humble than those which were present when its original owners took occupation of their new house in February 1800. Naming their property The Vineyard was easy – since there were some 22 000 vines already planted there!

Famous Cape diarist Lady Anne Barnard and her husband Andrew, colonial secretary to the Governor of the Cape of Good Hope, Earl Macartney, moved into their newly built house in February 1800 – right in the middle of the annual grape harvest. It was almost 141 years earlier, to the day, that Jan van Riebeeck wrote his famous diary entry on February 2, 1659: "Today, praise be to God, wine was made for the first time from Cape grapes."

In February 2009 South Africa celebrates the 350th anniversary of winemaking. The replanting of this vineyard is just one of the measures to commemorate this historic occasion. "The intention is never for this to be a commercial project," says The Vineyard Hotel & Spa General Manager Roy Davies. "Yes, we fully intend to harvest the vines – and we will supply them to our five wine partners – Meerlust, Warwick, Simonsig, Waterford and Klein Constantia. At some point we will probably make up 100 special commemorative packs of our partners' wines.

"Our idea is to bring The Vineyard's history alive for our guests. Not only can they visit our genuine vineyard planted with a range of grape varieties, but we can use it to enliven our wine offering.

The five wine farms involved in The Vineyard project also boast significant winemaking histories: the Malan family has produced wine since 1688 although Simonsig was established as recently as 1953, Meerlust has been in the Myburgh family since 1756, the Warwick wine track record goes back to 1791 and Klein Constantia's dates back to 1818. Waterford may have only been around in its present form since 1998 but it was once part of the original Stellenrust landholding – granted in the 1700s as Rustenburgh but later renamed to avoid confusion with the other farm of the same name.

Hannes Myburgh (Meerlust), Johan Malan (Simonsig), Mike Ratcliffe (Warwick), Kevin Arnold (Waterford) and Lowell Jooste (Klein Constantia) have all thrown their weight behind this project, assisting with the vine selection, assessment of the site's suitability, soil analysis and labour.

SOMMELIERS LIST

The Sommeliers list has been created to offer you the opportunity to gain access to wines that have been bought and stored in our maturation cellar. These wines are either the last of their bin ends or are a rarity in their own statue. We have created this list for you to have access to a spectrum of wines for you to consider when ordering your next bottle. Share it with friends or maybe even compare it with a current vintage, but we hope that you enjoy what our Sommelier has selected.

WHITE WINES

A STRING OF PEARLS

The Benedictine monks, notably Dom Perignon, are associated with the creation of Champagne. "Come quickly, I am tasting the stars!" is supposedly what he said when tasting the first sparkling Champagne. Three varieties are permitted in Champagne: red Pinot Noir and Pinot Meunier and white Chardonnay, carefully processed so as to enhance the appetizing acids that stimulate the palate. First fermentation creates the base wine (usually very tart and difficult to drink at this stage!). Sugar and yeast are added into the bottle again for the second fermentation. The bubbles (CO₂) are a by product of the fermentation process taking place inside the bottle, which are desirably unable to escape and as a result leave a carbonated wine at the end of the process. Champagne is synonymous with celebration, good company and pleasure. Don't forget it!

CHAMPAGNE

Mareuil-Sur-Ay France	GUY CHARBAUT NV Refined red berry fruits and aromas of freshly baked brioche following through onto the palate.	150	750
Mareuil-Sur-Ay France	BILLECART-SALMON BRUT RESERVE NV Finesse and elegance of pear and blackberry with hints of citrus fruit combined with a refined mousse and appetizing finish.		995
Epernay France	DOM PERIGNON 2000 Hints of white pepper and gardenia. The hints of anise and dried ginger glide over fruit skins (pear and mango), creating an effect that is more tactile than fleshy.		2500

MÉTHODE CAP CLASSIQUE MCC

MCC is the Cape version in the authentic Champagne style where the important second fermentation takes place in the bottle and the wine is disgorged in the traditional way, yet unique in flavour and style. Other varieties apart from the traditional three permitted in Champagne can be used.

Stellenbosch	 SIMONSIG KAAPSE VONKEL 2009 A biscuit & lemon-zest profile and rich mousse confirms class & appeal. 58 % Pinot Noir, 39% Chardonnay, 3% Pinot Meunier.	45	200
Stellenbosch	VILLIERA BRUT NATURAL 2008 Made without the use of sulphur and naturally fermented. Apple, yeast with hints of biscuit that follows through to the dry palate	55	255
Robertson	GRAHAM BECK DEMI SEC NV Light yeasty aromas, with hints of butterscotch, honey and praline, this delectable bubbly will stimulate your sweeter sense.		200
Stellenbosch	 SIMONSIG BRUT ROSÉ 2007 Rosy salmon pink colour, the palate shows fresh fruit intensity and a fresh clean finish.		235

SPARKLING WINE

Another popular method to create bubbles in wine other than the traditional second fermentation in the bottle is the Charmat process. Also called bulk process or cuve close, using large pressurized tanks throughout production. These interconnecting tanks retain the pressure created during a second fermentation throughout the entire process.

Stellenbosch	BEYERSKLOOF PINOTAGE BRUT ROSÉ 2009 Lightly earthy strawberry aromas sweetly fruited but dry & fresh – wonderful notes of cherries. Pleasant prickly mousse.	35	165
--------------	--	-----------	------------

ROSÉS

Rosé, particularly in Europe is produced from red grapes only. It is processed like white grapes ie. with minimal skin contact and hence the lighter resulting colour. The wines may vary from bone dry to semi sweet. All are best served well chilled, making a wonderfully refreshing summertime drink.

Sauvignon Blanc is without doubt, currently the worlds most popular grape variety. This is way we have more entries in this section than in any other and offer a wide variety by the glass. CHENIN BLANC

This versatile grape was for many years called "Steen" and many believed it was unique to the Cape. In 1965 it was established that it is the same as the French Chenin Blanc of the Loire. Today Chenin Blanc plantings are in decline. However, there has been a revival within the South African wine industry with the formation of the Chenin Blanc producers association. South Africa has by far the most planted vineyards of Chenin Blanc than anywhere else in the world. Chenin Blanc's adaptability allows it to produce wines ranging in style from dry to very sweet as well as fortified wines, Brandies and Sparkling wines.

RIESLING

The name, a source of confusion to consumers and of distress to the producers, is known in its great homeland Germany simply as Riesling. Here officially as Rhine or Weisser Riesling. In SA, Riesling is used alone on the label standing, and officially refers to Cape Riesling (crouchen blanc) and is mostly used in blends or otherwise frequently in off-dry styles. This noble variety is praised by wine writers, but the public still seem by and large unconvinced, though this is changing particularly in the USA. Go and try for yourself and you be the judge.

CHARDONNAY

The Chardonnay grape variety is a classic noble white wine grape grown all around the world. Chardonnay's original fame is built from the great wines of Burgundy and Champagne regions in France where it has been grown for over 400 years. In Chablis, the most northern part of Burgundy much Chardonnay remains un-oaked, elsewhere it is more often barrel-fermented and may undergo the softening effect of malolactic fermentation.

RED SELECTION

RED BLENDS

Johan Malan acclaimed and award winning Cape Wine maker from Simonsig Vineyards, claims that within a decade, “blending” will dominate the red wine scene. Think of Meerlust Rubicon, Simonsig Frans Malan, Vergelegen V, Kanonkop Paul Sauer and Rust en Vrede Estate and it is evident that blending provides a platform to create a masterpiece!

Since Meerlust's entry in 1980, “BORDEAUX BLENDS” of exceptional quality have been released. Cabernet Sauvignon, Cabernet Franc, Merlot Petit Verdot and Malbec are five varieties that may be used in the blend, usually with Cabernet or Merlot making the highest proportion of the blend. The 1979 Welgemeend was the first Bordeaux blend, not Rubicon!

While the Pinotage producers and association have suggested that a “CAPE BLEND” should contain a minimum percentage of this home bred grape, others think in another direction: “MULTI-BLENDS”. We think of Waterford's pioneering Super-Tuscan, 'The Gem', incorporating Cabernet Shiraz Mouvedre, and a couple of Italian varieties. “RHONE BLENDS” from Fairview:SMV (Shiraz, Mourvèdre, Viognier; the thick skinned, tannin filled white grape of the Rhône) are showing their natural affinity to the relatively warmer climate of South Africa. Shiraz usually dominates in the blend but other Rhone varieties such as Grenache and Mouvedre are producing excellent results as single variety bottling.

PINOT NOIR

Pinot Noir is one of the most difficult grapes to grow and make into a fine wine. Susceptible to rot and diseases while other varieties carry on growing in the same vineyard. This is in part attributed to the very thin skin of the grape which therefore makes for paler coloured red wines. Pinot Noir is associated with the fine wines of Burgundy and is also one of the classic grapes in the production of the finest quality Champagne. Strong cherry & strawberry aromas & flavours are often the most notable characteristics in these wines along .

SHIRAZ / SYRAH

Shiraz is better known as Syrah in its Southern French homeland. It produces full rich wines of intense colour and flavour. CAPE WINEMAKERS GUILD & NEDERBURG AUCTION WINES

Each year the prestigious Nedbank CWG Auction showcases the finest and most exclusive wines produced by its talented members. These rare limited edition wines are produced in small volumes exclusively for this Auction and strict controls are put in place to ensure wines are distinct from those offered under the winemakers' regular labels.

Auction wines are selected meticulously at a blind tasting where only those showing technical excellence are chosen, ensuring each wine offered under the CWG Auction label is of exceptional quality.

The public auction is held annually on the first Saturday of October and affords bidders the opportunity to buy rare and unique collector's pieces from some of the finest winemakers in South Africa.

There is a strong fundraising element to the CWG Auction in the form of a silent auction, consisting of exquisitely packaged, rare and handcrafted wines prepared by the Guild members for this occasion. Funds raised through the Silent Auction are donated to the Nedbank CWG Development Trust.

A premier event on Cape Town's wine calendar, the Nederburg Auction serves to showcase the spectrum of award-winning wines and rare Cape finds created by the country's most talented winemakers.

Since its beginnings in 1975 with the 'famous five' founding participants; Delheim, Groot Constantia, Overgaauw, Simonsig and of course Nederburg, and an offering of just 15 wines, the Auction has evolved into an international event where major local and overseas wine buyers bid for a stringently selected range of the finest wines created by South Africa's most talented winemakers.

Last year marked the 35th year of this prestigious event, which coincided with the celebration of 350 years of South African winemaking, and overall income fetched just over R4 million.
